In Memoriam

Maxine Julsun Cope (1913-2010) is remembered throughout Utah as a nurse administrator and educator. She was licensed as an RN in 1938, having received a diploma from the LDS Hospital School of Nursing and a post-graduate certificate from the New York Hospital, an affiliate of Cornell University. She earned bachelor, master, and doctoral degrees at the University of Utah.

Dr. Cope served as dean and professor at both BYU College of Nursing and at Westminster College School of Nursing. She was associate professor and head of the master of science program in medical and surgical nursing at the University of Utah. She was also program director at the Salt Lake Trade Technical Institute. Prior to her administrative assignments, she was assistant head nurse, head nurse, and surgical supervisor at LDS hospital.

Throughout her career she worked to improve nursing education at state and national levels. She was chair of the Utah State Board of Nursing and President of the Utah League for Nursing. She was also a state and national accreditation site visitor.

Dr. Cope was well known at BYU for launching the first international program for student nurses, Project Guatemala; for organizing the first Research Conference; and for establishing the graduate program.

Maxine was preceded in death by her husband, Richard Ludlow Cope. She is survived by nieces, nephews, and numerous great-nieces and nephews.

Brigham Young University College of Nursing joins nursing schools throughout Utah in an expression of gratitude for Maxine’s significant contribution to education and the nursing profession.

| 8:15 am to 9:30 am | Keynote Address: International Response to Disaster
Katie Walther, RN, BSN, MA
Cathie Hauritz, RN, BSN
An earthquake measuring 7.0 on the Richter scale struck Jan. 12 and destroyed most of the capital city of Port-Au-Prince, Haiti, and surrounding areas. The scale of devastation and heartache wrought by the earthquake is almost too tragic to comprehend. Join Ms. Walther and Ms. Hauritz as they relate their moving and uplifting stories of their recent experience volunteering in the aftermath of the Haitian earthquake. |
| 9:30 am to 10:15 am | Break with Poster Presenters                                                                                                           |
| 10:15 am to 11:15 am | Concurrent Sessions
“Gasping for Breath”: Sleep Apnea
John Sanders, MD
Does sleep apnea affect your patients’ recovery? Nurses are in a unique position to identify patients with Obstructive Sleep Apnea (OSA). Knowledge of its symptoms and related risk factors allow nurses to identify OSA early and prevent adverse patient events.
“Why Don’t they Leave?”: Domestic Violence
Melinda Pettingill, MSW, LCSW
With only half of all domestic violence victims reporting their injuries, nurses have a challenge to discover and support all patients for potential abuse. This presentation will provide details on why people stay in abusive relationships and why abusers feel entitled to control their partners, along with a list of conditions and behaviors that people who are abused often display.
“Chronicity: More than Pathology”
Gretchen Cornell, PhD, RN, CNE
Chronic disease affects families and communities across our nation. Ms. Cornell will help you develop an understanding of what it is like to live with chronic illness and its overwhelming affects on individuals and families.
“Return of the Plagues”
Audrey Stevenson, PhD, MPH, MSN, FNP-BC
What did Utah learn from the recent H1N1 outbreak? Dr. Stevenson will identify communicable diseases that have the potential for becoming pandemics and discuss the nurses’ role in prevention and early intervention. |
| 12:15 pm to 1:45 pm | Lunch (on your own)                                                                                                                    |
| 1:45 pm to 2:45 pm | Concurrent Sessions
“Don’t Blame the School Lunch Lady”: Childhood Obesity and Diabetes
Donna Wahoff-Stice, FNP
Diseases like type 2 diabetes, once only found in adults, are now being diagnosed at an alarming rate in children. Ms. Wahoff-Stice will offer insight and advice for nurses managing the care of children at risk. She will also discuss First Lady Michelle Obama’s Obesity Initiative.
Horses vs Zebras
TBA
If you hear hoof beats do you think horse… or zebra? When a patients presents with common symptoms do you only consider the obvious and ignore the unexpected? Learn how to recognize the hidden signals in patient status and life threatening changes that are often overlooked.
“Keeping Patients Safe—What Can You Do?”
Lynn Elstein, MS, RN, NE-BC
Marlyn Conti, RN, BSN, MM, CPH
As regulatory pressures increase on healthcare providers, nurses are held more accountable for patient outcomes. Ms. Elstein and Ms. Conti will discuss the National Patient Safety Goals as well as provide two personal practices nurses can implement to improve patient safety. |
| 3:00 pm to 4:30 pm | Closing Presentation: Local Response to Disaster
Local Disaster Management Specialists
BREAKING NEWS: A major disaster has just occurred in Salt Lake County. Stay tuned for more details. What will your role be in this disaster? How will you respond? Don’t miss this interactive presentation on disaster response. |
| 4:30 pm to 5:00 pm | Wrap Up/Evaluations                                                                                                                    |

Kathie has also worked as a Family Nurse Practitioner in a variety of in-patient and ambulatory settings. She works as a nurse consultant to the Salt Lake City School District. She has published a number of articles in the MJN journal, JOGNN and Clinician Review. She has also been a national and international speaker on nursing topics.

CALL FOR ABSTRACTS

Deadline for Abstracts – on or before August 31, 2010

The 2010 UANA Conference Committee invites you to submit an abstract to be considered for poster presentation at this year's Annual Conference.

This conference will focus on a broad spectrum of health care issues that patients face and nurses encounter in reality every day. Abstract submissions should describe original programs, projects or documents created, developed, or implemented with at least one objective related to the conference focus, such as: clinical improvements or innovations, community programs, evidence-based practice, research, ethics, delegation, collaboration, patient or community education, disaster readiness or life and health management skills. Three general categories of posters will be accepted including original research in nursing, academic service learning experiences and outcomes, and creative works (including teaching projects, artwork, and poetry).

The poster must be self-supporting and two posters will share a 6 foot table. Presenters are required to register for the conference and be present to discuss their posters with attendees.

All submissions undergo peer-review. Please carefully review the following instructions as incomplete submissions will not be reviewed for consideration.

Instructions for Abstract Submission

- All submissions should be emailed to una@xmission.com by midnight August 31, 2010.
- Include in the body of the email: name of person submitting abstract, phone number, and email contact information. The subject line should read: Call for Abstracts.

A dynamic $7.3 million program project research grant focused on end-of-life care has been funded by the National Institutes of Health (NIH) National Cancer Institute, and brings an unprecedented level of research funding to the University of Utah and its College of Nursing. The five year project, Enhancing End-of-Life and Bereavement Outcomes among Cancer Caregivers, is the collaboration of a research team that includes seven College of Nursing faculty members: Susan Beck, Ph.D., A.P.R.N., F.A.A.N., Pat Berry, Ph.D., A.P.R.N., F.A.A.N., Michael Caserta, Ph.D., Margaret Clayton, Ph.D., RN., F.NP.C.S., Gary Donaldson, Ph.D., Lee Ellington, Ph.D., Kathie Supiano, M.S.S, L.C.S.W., Rebecca Utz, Ph.D, and Kathi Mooney, Ph.D., R.N., F.A.A.N.

Led by Dr. Mooney, who has been named the 2010 Oncology Nursing Society Distinguished Researcher for her extensive work in the field, the project was developed to address the difficult transitions for caregivers providing care at home for a dying spouse or partner and then continuing through the bereavement transition to widowhood. It involves three interrelated research studies plus a shared core for participant recruitment, data collection and analysis.

“The final days, weeks and months, of a dying person’s life are marked by decline and often distressing, escalating and poorly relieved symptoms,” says Dr. Mooney. “Additionally, observing a dying family member in pain and ultimately dying is stressful for caregivers. Yet family members must go on and reconstruct new lives. The central theme of the project is to advance knowledge and interventions that improve end-of-life care and bereavement experiences for family caregivers.” Of the project’s three studies, the first two focus on the experience of caring for the dying family member by a spouse caregiver at home with the assistance of hospice services.

Symptom Care by Phone For Hospice Caregiver Support and Cancer Symptom Relief (SCP-Hospice), led by Dr. Mooney, will study the effectiveness of a symptom alerting program that uses a telephone based call system for the family caregiver to report symptoms that their spouse is experiencing as well as their own distress from the symptoms. The system will automatically send information about unrelieved symptoms to the Hospice nurse overseeing their care as well as give the family caregiver information and strategies on how to improve care and comfort of the patients as well as self-care strategies for the caregiver. Dr. Ellington will lead the second study, Hospice Nurse-Caregiver Communication: Implications for Caregiving & Bereavement (NCC), which will observe communication patterns between the hospice nurse and the caregiver. Hospice nurse home visits will be audio taped to examine how nurse-caregiver interactions lead to improved end-of-life care.

The third study, Individualized Dual Process Intervention for Bereaved Partners After Cancer Death (DPM), will be led by Dr. Caserta and Dale Lund, Ph.D., professor and chair of the Department of Sociology at California State University, San Bernardino, and will involve an individualized bereavement program for the spouse once the family member has died. The intervention assists spouses to deal with both the emotional aspects of bereavement as well as new life skills needed in living alone.

In addition to the wealth of knowledge that will come from each of the three projects separately, the program project grant allows the interactive long term study of how improved care during the dying process might lead to positive bereavement outcomes as well as how pre-death care giving and hospice nurse involvement may accelerate healthier bereavement transitions. According to Dr. Mooney, it will also be an opportunity for undergraduate and graduate students at the College of Nursing to gain valuable research experience.
